ICO REVOLUTION

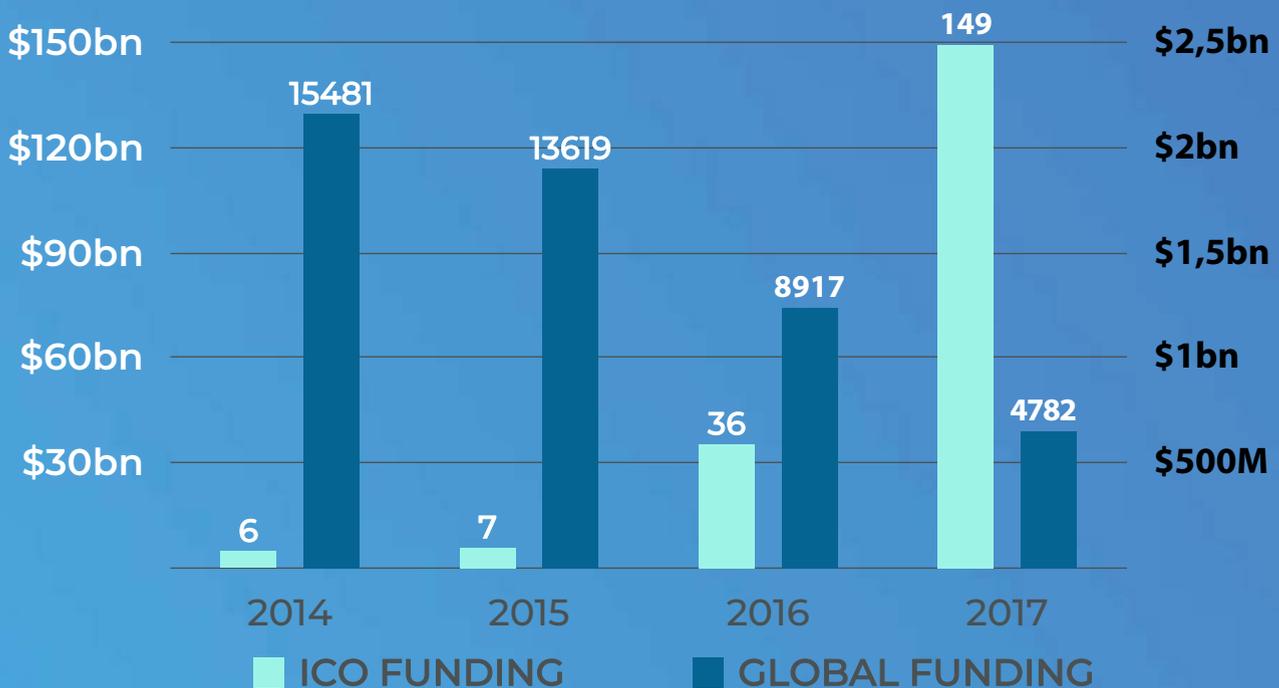

It was in 2014 when the founder of Ethereum, Vitalik Buterin, presented his project to the world through the first ICO. With this initiative, he tried to self-finance, offered his cryptocurrency in exchange for bitcoins, and predicted that, if his project had started, this currency would be revalued offering great benefits to investors.

In around 40 days, Vitalik succeeded in collecting a sum close to 18 million dollars, which today has seen its price increase more than 3000 times. With these funds, he built Ethereum in a few months, and today it is the leader in the blockchain market for the creation of new ERC-20 tokens.

The launch of an ICO represents a unique and unrepeatable opportunity for new startups and an increasing number of companies, especially in the fintech and IT sector, which want to take this opportunity to enter this new market through the main gate.

Our company is firmly convinced that in 2018, investments in ICO will increase exponentially. The graph below shows the evolution of the ICO market up to 2017 and is already very indicative of the path that the new startups are undertaking.
